All's Well that Ends Well

Are the world economies and bankers and investors finally closing the books on the 2008 financial implosion? It certainly appears so, given the stock market rallies and positive economic news. Central Banks around the globe really did learn the lesson from the US's Great Depression and from Japan's ongoing real estate crisis of the Nineties. In those instances, not enough money was released into the system to keep it afloat, to keep it liquid, to maintain buying and selling. In the situation of the last few years to the contrary, the Fed has maintained quantitative easing programs in the form of keeping short-term rates about zero and bringing long-term rates down to about 2-3%. Plenty of liquidity has been pumped into the system without

WEEKLY REVIEW

2/27 Bonds pulled back slightly. LQD got within 0.02 of getting stopped out, but has rebounded again.

2/21 The Treasury market is being sold, as the risk trade comes off with the news Greece won't default, but will offer a haircut of some 50%. There is some advantage to being too big to fail. Please note the very close STOP levels. We may be in for a pullback here.

2/13 The Income Portfolio remains near fully invested. I expect this to generally continue through 2014, but monitor the stops in case of short-term swings. As mentioned last week, the real question is what type of bond to hold. I would also mention that in stock market secular bear markets, the emphasis should be on bonds. We've been in this secular bear for about 12 years and may have a few more to go.

2/6 Given the expectation for interest rates to remain low through late 2014, the question is really which bond area (Treasuries, corporates, internationals, high yield) and duration (short, intermediate, long) to buy. Right now, I'm not making any changes to the Income Portfolio.

ETF data on pages 3, 7, 8, and 9 are for the periods shown (12months, 9, 6, 3, and 1) through the previous month's close. Generally, we want to own the top ranked ETFs (shown in green) and avoid or short the lower ranked ETFs (shown in red).

This is the ETF Income Database and Ranking. It shows performance over the last 12, 9, 6, 3, and 1 months through the previous month's end. V is Volatility. NAV is price. CS is Comet Strength (not shown). C is Comet (not shown), which is an ETF's risk-adjusted performance; the higher the better. V, CS, and C are proprietary tools. Rank column shows the number of comets.

SLM Bond Timing Model

The SLM Bond Timing Model is based on the expected direction of the Corporate Bond market. The green bars are bullish (expect higher prices and lower yields) and the red bars are bearish (expect lower prices and higher yields). White spaces indicate that the previous signal is still in effect.

WEEKLY REVIEW

2/27 Corporate bonds continue their relative performance. We remain bullish on bonds.

2/21 The Treasury market appears to be weakening, at least on a short-term basis. Can the corporate market hold up nonetheless? Please note the updated very close stop levels on the Portfolio page 2.

2/13 Corporate bond rally continues. Treasuries have lagged a bit with the assumption of Greece solving its problems.

2/6 The bond market's main trend remains up (prices should rise and yields should fall).

1/30 Treasuries still look relative attractive to corporates.

1/23 You can see the pullback in Treasuries (blue line) in the chart above. Corporates are still trending higher.

Income Charts

AGG—Aggregate Bond Market

2/27 No breakout yet.
 2/21 Still wondering which way?
 2/13 Which way will she break?
 2/6 No change.
 1/30 Still bullish on bonds.
 1/23 Watching for an entry point.
 1/17 Coming back to where selling entered.
 1/10 No change.
 1/3 Still in an uptrend, but is it weakening?
 12/27 The longer-term trend remains up for bond prices (down for yields).

LQD—Corporate Bonds

2/27 Trending up.
 2/21 Nice rally from the last signal, but can't go straight up forever. Watch the stops.
 2/13 Been a good rally, but watch for prices to break down through the uptrend for first signs of weakness. Otherwise hang on.
 2/6 Continuing to hold. Raised the stop.
 1/30 No changes.
 1/23 Been a nice rally of some 4% off the turn (last green spikes).

PHB—High Yield

2/27 Rebounded to previous highs.
 2/21 High yield showing some relative strength.
 2/13 Daily chart again. Been a nice rally in "junk" bonds also.
 2/6 This is a weekly chart. I wanted to back up and show how far high yield prices could still rally to get back to where they were before the financial implosion.
 1/30 No change.

Each chart shows daily prices, a moving average (smoothed red line on price portion), and spikes. The spikes show potential buy and sell short signals. Generally speaking, if the moving average is trending down, the spike shows a potential sell short. If the moving average is trending up, the spike shows a potential buy. The charts do not show selling or covering signals.

WEEKLY REVIEW

2/27 The short positions were all stopped out. The long positions participated in the rally. The net gain is nothing to write home about. Work on the newish model continues with backtesting.

2/21 Raised the stops and sold EEM based partially on the negative divergences between the Industrials and Transports.

2/13 No changes to the model at this time.

2/6 Covered two ETFs for losses, while the other positions rallied. I will reshort GLD. Please note the updated stop prices.

1/30 Please note any new stop levels. GLD was covered at a loss after the Fed signaled low interest rates. The market is assuming inflation.

1/23 Please note the very tight stop on QQQ. It has moved back to the top of its trading range. Odds are this is another top.

This page shows the top ranked ETF Growth Database. It shows performance over the last 12, 9, 6, 3, and 1 months through the previous month's end. V is Volatility. NAV is price. CS is Comet Strength (not shown). C is Comet, which is an ETF's risk-adjusted performance; the higher the better (not shown). This gives us the Rank column (shown).

Generally speaking, we want to own the top-ranked ETFs with 5 and 4 comets. (Comets, not stars, because unlike stars that are fixed, comets come into and out of prominence. We want our thinking, our metaphor aligning with reality.

This shows the ETF Growth Database and Ranking. It shows performance over the last 12, 9, 6, 3, and 1 months through the previous month's end. V is Volatility. NAV is price. Rank shows the number of comets from 5 to 1. The larger the better.

Growth Charts

QQQ—OTC

2/27 Still trending up.
 2/21 Watch the tight stop mentioned on page 6.
 2/13 Can't go straight up forever. Watch the trend line for reversals.
 2/6 Weekly chart, showing tech is leading.
 1/30 Recovery highs.
 1/23 QQQ has made it back to the top of its trading range. Time for a very tight stop.
 1/17 Short-term Qs have broken out, but longer-term they are at major resistance.
 1/10 QQQ may be breaking to the upside. Will monitor closely for potential action.

GLD—Gold

2/27 Broke through its down trend line.
 Odds are it is heading to recovery highs.
 2/21 Maintain short for now, as GLD is still in a downward intermediate-term trend.
 2/13 Have reshorted with the idea that GLD is in a confirmed down channel. Since it is close to the top of the channel, it provides a low-risk entry point.
 2/6 Reshort at the top of the channel area. Will look to cover and go long on any drops toward the bottom of the channel. Monitor the stop loss.
 1/30 Covered at a loss. Will now look to go long on any pullbacks to the trend line.

EEM—MSCI Emerging Markets

2/27 Also broke through the down trend.
 2/21 This fund has rallied back to its intermediate-term down trend line. Time to take profits as noted on page 6.

Each chart shows daily prices, a moving average (smoothed red line on price portion), and spikes. The spikes show potential buy and sell short signals. Generally speaking, if the moving average is trending down, the spike shows a potential sell short. If the moving average is trending up, the spike shows a potential buy. The charts do not show selling or covering signals.

a corresponding increase in inflation.

Even the recent situation focused on Greece has been met with similar actions whereby additional funds are provided to what is otherwise an insolvent situation.

Or take another example like General Motors. They received Government funding, without which they would have gone under. But this additional capital and management changes resulted in a GM recovery to again claim the number one spot of selling the most cars worldwide. It also created some jobs along the way.

So, all's well that ends well. Crisis averted. Liquidity provided. Insolvency ignored.

But unlike a play, the world moves on. There is no such thing as an end. It keeps going. It is like the stock market in a way. It closes at 3pm central time, but opens again the next day. Pull up a chart and it never ends.

$82 billion on the GM bailout. Add it to our debt. And this is the next point.

2013, after the elections when politicians are settled in, is when they will be forced to address our domestic situation. Our national debt is projected to rise to 100% of GDP by then. Add in future entitlement spending and it is worse than that.

Cut spending or raise taxes will be necessary. Neither of those things will be good for the economy.

So, the financial implosion appears over, but the cost thereof is ongoing.

In the meantime as mentioned the last two weeks, the stock market is tracing out a major long-term divergence where the Industrials are at recovery highs, but the Transports aren't. Perhaps this is a signal to what's ahead.

Just to clarify a couple of terms that I use regularly.

Short-term is days to weeks.

Intermediate-term is weeks to months.

Long-term is months to years.

Cyclical is 2-5 years.

Secular is 5 years to decades.

Bull market is a series of higher highs and higher lows.

Bear market is a series of lower lows and lower highs.

Neutral market is sideways without a discernible pattern.

Oddly, bull and bear markets may occur simultaneously, but over different time periods. For example, we may be in a secular bear market, but there are cyclical bull and bear markets.

Closing stops are "mental". I look at the position at quarter to the close. If it is trading below the stop (or above if short), then I act with the assumption the security will trigger that closing stop on that day. I sell (or cover) at the close that day.

2/27/12 No changes to the letter or models yet.

2/21/12 No changes.

2/13/12 I am still working on the ETF allocation model that I've mentioned a few times before. It is designed to combine both ETF selecting and timing into one model. It is moving more slowly than I thought it would, but steady progress continues.

2/6/12 Monthly updates for the ETF equity and bond rankings are shown.

1/30/12 No changes.

1/23/12 Database changes are planned. Please email SMcKee@InvestmentST.com for any suggestions of ETFs you want followed. Thanks.

Descriptions & Disclosures

PORTFOLIO DESCRIPTIONS (pages 2 and 6)

Our guiding goal is to provide the most return with the least risk consistently over time through bull and bear markets.

Income Portfolio, page 2: Uses a proprietary selection methodology on all of the monitored bond-oriented ETFs to pick the top ETFs. I then use a proprietary timing model to decide whether to buy, sell, hold, or avoid.

Growth Portfolio, page 6: Uses the same methodologies as in the Income Portfolio, except as it is applied to stock-oriented ETFs.

Both portfolios were started on 1/1/10 with $100,000.

Portfolio changes will usually be made at the close on Monday, unless otherwise noted in any emailed hotline update or triggered stop orders. Issues are normally posted on Mondays by 1:35pm cst.

Portfolios are updated through the Friday close the week before.

Dividends are reinvested in additional shares. Commissions of $10/trade and short-term redemption charges, if any, are applied.

Interest is zero for the money market (cash) position.

Wilshire 5000 TR (total return) includes dividend reinvestment. This is a broad based index of domestic stocks.
