Introductory Review (carried over from Friday)

After a disastrous 2008 and first quarter 2009, the market spent the rest of 2009 in a recovery rally. The chart below shows the bear and bull markets and my thinking about them at the time.

Around January, 2009, I saw that the market was potentially tracing out a head and shoulders pattern (on the chart, the H is Head and S is shoulder and N is the neckline. T is the Target measure therefrom). This pattern should be bullish.

Essentially this pattern shows fear, more fear, and maximum fear. But at that final maximum fear, the market should not drop to new lows. Instead, we should begin to see faint signs of recover in the forms of index nonconfirmations, fiscal and monetary stimulus programs, and still worsening investor sentiment. My favorite adage was happening; that is, buy in fear and sell in greed.

But global events instead worsened, the first H&S pattern

The two columns to the left show the rankings of the equity oriented ETFs in our database through the previous Friday's close.

These rankings are based on momentum indicators around which we generally want to trade. Our general strategy is to invest with the stronger performing ETFs by investing with the main trend and against the minor trend down. This means that in a bear (down) market, we want to short the funds that rally against their main trend downward. In a bull market, we want to buy during selloffs with the main trend up.

That failure turned into the final cold sweat, can't sleep, end of the world as we know it, panic sell off in March. Glory days.

Since that low, the market rallied smartly to the top of what should have been the earlier break through of the neckline. It stalled there, but since then has continued to rally, until it is now around the Target area.

That is the summary, but where to now? The same fiscal and monetary policies remain in place that helped the recovery begin. They should help it continue. But the market has obviously come a long way higher. Signs of weakness are appearing.

So, I may nibble in the weeks ahead, but will wait for a larger pullback to get more fully invested. We are in this to consistently make money without giving it back over the years.

Descriptions & Disclosures

PORTFOLIO DESCRIPTIONS (pages 2 and 3)

Our guiding goal is to provide the most return with the least risk.

Income Portfolio, page2: Uses a proprietary selection methodology on all of the monitored bond-oriented ETFs to pick the top ETFs. I then use a proprietary timing model to decide whether to buy, sell, hold, or avoid.

Growth Portfolio, page 3: Uses the same methodologies as in the Income Portfolio, except as it is applied to stock-oriented ETFs.

All portfolios were started on 1/1/10 with $100,000.

Portfolio changes will usually be made either at the close on Friday (the day this eNewsletter is posted) or on Mondays at the open, unless otherwise noted in the email hotline update.

Portfolios are updated through the Friday close the week before.

Dividends are reinvested in additional shares. Commissions of $5/trade and short-term redemption charges, if any, are applied.

Interest is zero for the money market (cash) position.
