Tumbling To Support

The stock market concluded the first full month of the new year with a tumble of 3%. This puts it at major support. This is shown on the chart below.

As I've been mentioning, the question to ask is whether the fundamentals have changed. In other words, is the correction signaling a new recession ahead where earnings will come down or is the economy still on track to expand?

The answer for now is that it is simply a correction in an ongoing bull market.

The leading economic indicators are still trending up for nine straight months. No weakness is signaled there.

GDP did expand, although it may not be so great in the months ahead, yet still at a positive clip.

Fiscal and monetary stimulus programs are still in place.

So, the market has come down to a support area. It is still in a bull market. This means that new recovery highs are still projected and still to be expected.

The chart is the daily S&P 500 with red smoothed line a 200-day moving average. The spikes on bottom are trading signals.

WEEKLY REVIEW and PREVIEW

Still accumulating the high-yield fund on its correction. The leading economic indicators are up for nine straight months. Lending is loosening. Companies are tapping the capital markets. High yield bonds should continue to benefit in this type of environment.

The two columns to the left show the rankings of the equity oriented ETFs in our database through the previous Friday's close.

These rankings are based on momentum indicators around which we generally want to trade. Our general strategy is to invest with the stronger performing ETFs by investing with the main trend and against the minor trend down. This means that in a bear (down) market, we want to short the funds that rally against their main trend downward. In a bull market, we want to buy during selloffs with the main trend up.

PORTFOLIO DESCRIPTIONS (pages 2 and 3)

Our guiding goal is to provide the most return with the least risk.

Income Portfolio, page2: Uses a proprietary selection methodology on all of the monitored bond-oriented ETFs to pick the top ETFs. I then use a proprietary timing model to decide whether to buy, sell, hold, or avoid.

Growth Portfolio, page 3: Uses the same methodologies as in the Income Portfolio, except as it is applied to stock-oriented ETFs.

All portfolios were started on 1/1/10 with $100,000.
