Volatility Reenters

I guess the old “be careful what you wish for” comes readily and quickly to mind. A week ago I was wondering if we’d ever see a correction again. Yep, we sure did.

Last Thursday, the market tumbled to its lows set in February and wiped out the gains for the year. The growth portfolio due to its high cash levels and short Spain is still up nearly 3%.

Will the European contagion be contained? The short, near-term easy answer is yes. But it’s the long-term view that is slightly worrisome.

Is America with its high debt load and profligate Government spending headed down the same road as Iceland, Greece, Spain, Great Britain, and all the others? Just a worry at this point, but something to monitor as the months and years unfold. We need to reign in the

The chart is the daily S&P 500 with blue smoothed line an 80-day moving average. The spikes are possible trading signals.

WEEKLY REVIEW and PREVIEW

The high-yield sector of the bond market got caught up in the fall out of the European sovereign debt crisis. Domestically, however, things haven't changed that much. It is time to accumulate more today as noted in the top left box.

Income Charts

PHB—high yield ETF.

If the past patterns hold, PHB is “cheap” relative to the AGG bond market. Time to buy more.

TIP—inflation protection ETF.

The expected breakout took place and the fund has surged. I will look to take profits on rallies.

BSV— short-term bond

Short term bonds jumped last week.

Each chart shows daily prices (top portion), volume (bottom portion), a moving average (smoothed red line on price portion, a relative strength indicator between the ETF and AGG (Aggregated bond ETF) (orange line), and red spikes. The spikes show potential places to buy and sell short. If the moving average is trending down, the spike shows a potential sell short. If the moving average is trending up, the spike shows a potential buy. The charts do not show selling or covering signals.

WEEKLY REVIEW

Once the markets settle down somewhat, I intend to make a few changes.

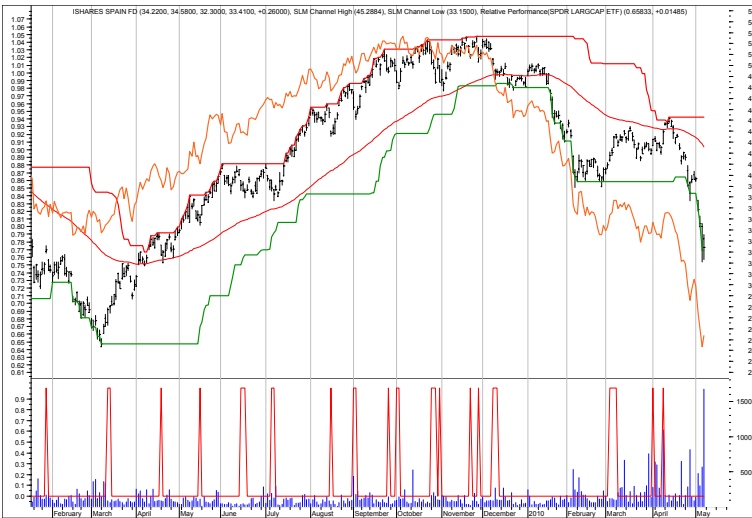

See performance rankings of the equity oriented ETFs on page six.

Growth Charts

IYM

Back to major support, so I will reenter.

EWP

Sinking back. It is underperforming.

DBC

Commodity ETF. At a critical juncture. It should break out to the upside, unless the world-wide economy is truly sinking again.

Each chart shows daily prices (top portion), volume (bottom portion), a moving average (smoothed line on price portion), a relative performance indicator between the ETF and S&P 500 (orange line), and red spikes. The spikes show potential buy and sell short signals. Generally speaking, if the moving average is trending down, but the ETF rallies, the spike shows a potential sell short. If the moving average is trending up, but the ETF declines, the spike shows a potential buy. The charts do not show selling or covering signals.

The two columns to the left show the rankings of the equity oriented ETFs in our database through the previous Friday's close.

These rankings are based on momentum indicators around which we generally want to trade. Our general strategy is to invest with the stronger performing ETFs by investing with the main trend and against the minor trend down. This means that in a bear (down) market, we want to short the funds that rally against their main trend downward. In a bull market, we want to buy during selloffs with the main trend up.

horse before it runs away from us.

For the domestic stock market, it obviously had a sharp sell off. Today (Monday) it is bouncing back.

Best guess is that the lows set Thursday should hold in the week ahead, which is about 9800 on the Dow Industrials. Unless we are headed again for the cliff, the market is cheap again and should be bought. So, I nibble in the Growth Portfolio. Watch your email for any "between issues" updates.

PORTFOLIO DESCRIPTIONS (pages 2 and 3)

Our guiding goal is to provide the most return with the least risk consistently over time through bull and bear markets.

Income Portfolio, page2: Uses a proprietary selection methodology on all of the monitored bond-oriented ETFs to pick the top ETFs. I then use a proprietary timing model to decide whether to buy, sell, hold, or avoid.

Growth Portfolio, page 3: Uses the same methodologies as in the Income Portfolio, except as it is applied to stock-oriented ETFs.

All portfolios were started on 1/1/10 with $100,000.

Portfolio changes will usually be made at the close on Monday, unless otherwise noted in any emailed hotline update. Issues are normally posted on Mondays by 1:30pm est.

Portfolios are updated through the Friday close the week before.

Dividends are reinvested in additional shares. Commissions of $5/trade and short-term redemption charges, if any, are applied.

Interest is zero for the money market (cash) position.
